More Men, More Equipment

Reinforced RCMP Patrols To Crack Down on Speeders

New Zone Plan To Check Cars

Royal Canadian Mounted Police, reinforced by more men, more equipment and a new idea in traffic control, will launch a rigid traffic enforcement program throughout B.C. this spring.

Assistant Commissioner C. W. Harvison, chief of the force in the province, announced the sharply-increased crackdown on erring motorists yesterday.

"Our chief tool in combating traffic accidents is prosecution," he said. "Until a better answer comes along, we intend to use it for all it's worth."

This will mean more ghost cars—unmarked police cars—and more patrols will be put on the highways. More radar sets will be added to the five now in use in B.C., and they will be made more mobile.

"There were just over 22,000 prosecutions last year in RCMP areas alone," Commissioner Harvison said, "and they will increase this year unless some of these measures have the effect of lessening the number of offences."

NOT ENOUGH

"We increased our prosecutions last year by 62 per cent. That had some effect, but not nearly as much as we had hoped. It just kept the accident line on our chart about even."

So now, 11 RCMP officers in charge of traffic units across the province are in conference here for all this week. They are studying methods of traffic enforcement used now, uniformity of operation throughout B.C., distribution of traffic squads and other vital enforcement matters.

Means are being studied of co-operating more closely with organizations, such as schools and service clubs, which are interested in promoting traffic education.

ZONE EXPERIMENT

But the outstanding single facet of the stronger safety drive is a "Special Traffic Control Zone" plan, which hasn't been used anywhere else before but on which the RCMP has been experimenting for more than a month.

A well-marked and publicized entrance to the zone will have men in uniform taking down licence numbers of cars entering it. The numbers and times of entry are radioed to men at the exit point. If a car has gone through the zone in a time which means it exceeded the speed limit, the driver will be stopped and prosecuted.

The feature of this plan is that, although the entrance to the zone is clearly evident, the exit is secret and could be one, 10 or 100 miles away and the motorist cannot cut his cloth to fit any distance.

DAILY CHANGES

The zones' locations and lengths will vary from day to day.

"Our whole hope with this scheme, as with the whole drive, is not to boost the prosecutions," Commission Harvison stressed. "We aren't interested in prosecutions merely as prosecutions. But this will, we hope, cut down speed and reckless driving, and therefore reduce our accident rate."

He added, however, that the attorney-General's department had given assurance that evidence gained by such means would be legal in prosecutions.

It was too soon now, he said to say just how many men and how much equipment would be added to the force, but this conference should decide that.

PSYCHOLOGICAL

Commissioner Harvison said both ghost cars and radar checks have proved successful, mainly for their psychological effect on drivers.

"When it is rumored about that a radar check is going to be held in an area, or maybe a ghost car added, we notice that speed and accident figures fall right off.

"And that's just the effect we are hoping this concerted drive will have . . . to knock those accident figures right off our chart," he said.

Homes Badly Needed

'Help Aged Or—Get Out of Way'

Winch Lashes Ottawa Neglect

HAROLD WINCH
. . . "a grave problem"

OTTAWA (CP)—Harold Winch said Monday night the federal government should give more help in providing homes for the aged or else get out of the way of those who are trying to help.

The CCF member for Vancouver East said in the Commons the government is making no serious effort to interest itself in "this most serious problem."

The most the government did was provide mortgages, at interest rates one per cent higher than government bonds, to non-profit companies building low-rent housing for the aged. Municipalities provided free land and some provincial governments contributed one-third of the capital cost.

Mr. Winch said seven or eight years ago it was possible to provide adequate housing for $22 a month. Now it was impossible to do it under $35.

The federal government should seriously consider matching the provincial grants.

"If they don't, I most seriously request that they do not put obstacles in the way of those who want to do something about it."

Mr. Winch said one of the obstacles is that Ottawa does not allow income tax exemptions for those who contribute to voluntary organizations attempting to build low-rent housing for the aged. It ruled that such non-profit groups were in business. Yet they were simply "trying to do the things that the government should be doing."

In contrast, Prime Minister St. Laurent had announced tax exemptions for donations to the proposed Canada Council on arts and the humanities.

Weatherman Threatens:

'Conditions Right' For New Snowfall

Sanding Done On All City Hills

While Victoria is still recovering from the nine-inch fall of snow over the weekend, further snow flurries are forecast by the weatherman for today.

Cold weather is expected to continue with light north winds. Predicted low and high temperatures are 25 and 35.

Key to the "snow, no snow" question is centred along the east coast of Vancouver Island. Weather officials said yesterday that conditions were right for the formation of storms, and if they are formed more snow would fall over Victoria.

But the fall would be lighter than the nine-inches recorded over the weekend.

Deputy Police Chief Harry Mercer of Victoria said last night that all hills in the city had been sanded. No streets had been set aside to allow children to use their sleds. There were no streets in the city which were safe for sleighing, he said.

When temperatures dropped below freezing last night roads which were wet with melted snow during the day became treacherous with a covering of ice.

Police departments in Greater Victoria all reported roads in a very hazardous condition. The Island Highway at Burnside was described as "like a sheet of glass."

Despite the dangerous driving conditions no major accidents were reported.

There were a number of minor accidents, mainly crumpled fenders. Pedestrians suffered most from the icy conditions underfoot.

St. Joseph's Hospital reported a rash of minor injuries were treated in the emergency ward yesterday and last night. At Royal Jubilee Hospital a little girl was treated for a shoulder injury and one person was admitted with a fractured arm.

Public transportation was not disrupted by road conditions. Officials of both the B.C. Electric and Vancouver Island Coach Lines reported buses running on schedule.

AIRPORT CLEAR

Patricia Bay Airport reported last night that the weather was clear with only odd, small fog patches. A few flurries of snow were expected overnight.

Up-Island, the weather was clear and cold. At Duncan, a few light snow flakes were reported.

Nanaimo RCMP reported that light snow fell early in the evening and side streets in the town were slippery. Highways and main roads were reported in good condition.

At Courtenay no snow fell yesterday and temperatures were mild.

Little likelihood of a serious drainage problem resulting from the snow was seen yesterday by C.P.R. Engineer James C. Garnett.

The flooding that followed the snowfall early in December resulted from three circumstances: a heavy runoff from melted snow, an exceptionally heavy rainfall and exceptionally high tides.

But this time, Mr. Garnett said, "the snow is melting at a nice slow rate." The Saturday fall of snow, he said, was equivalent to only one inch of rain.

Chicago

Grain Fire Rages

CHICAGO (AP) — A roaring fire raged through a huge river-front grain elevator Monday night, spread, briefly to a freighter docked nearby and threatened other buildings in the South Side area.

More than 35 per cent of the city's fire equipment was at the scene.

End Disputes

Warn of A-Blasts Canada Suggests

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Canada would like to see the nuclear powers register test blasts in advance with the United Nations, External Affairs Minister Pearson said Monday, but he reiterated the only realistic steps toward world disarmament must be taken in negotiation.

With the UN political committee meeting again just after the United States reported another Russian test explosion, the Canadian delegate said advance registration of such tests would be "an important preliminary step" toward ending the long dispute on these tests.

He introduced a resolution along with Norway and Japan calling for advance registration.

He called for a "realistic acceptance" that disarmament can only be achieved by negotiation and "willing agreement."

He said Canada backed the registration resolution only because it might be better "to do now what is possible and feasible with respect to nuclear test explosions rather than do nothing at all."

Top Russians Sow Medals

MOSCOW (UP) — Russian leaders sowed medals all over the Soviet Union yesterday in hopes of reaping a bigger grain harvest.

Virtually the entire top echelon of Kremlin officials was touring the country distributing medals to an estimated 100,000 citizens. The awards ranged from the top-ranking Lenin Order to simple discs for "excellence in work."

Officials Burn Up What Queen Saved

LONDON (UP)—The Sunday Express reported railway officials in two cars drove 200 miles to arrange for Queen Elizabeth to travel 103 miles by train. The Queen travelled by train instead of by car in order to save rationed gasoline.

Builder's Call:

Cheaper Houses

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Construction Association was told Monday it must reduce the cost of houses so more families in the lower-income groups may become houseowners.

V. L. Leigh of Victoria, chairman of the CCA's housing committee, said the industry must maintain a high volume of residential construction despite rising costs.

The committee's report said that in 1955 more than half the loans under the National Housing Act were issued to those with annual incomes of $5,000 or more.

Last year the number of NHA loans dropped and the proportion of those going to people with annual incomes of more than $5,000 increased.

Mr. Leigh said provisions of the National Housing Act should be broadened so that more Canadians could have better housing.

His report said that prices for lots in many cases have risen several thousand dollars during the last five years.

The construction industry last year carried out a volume of more than $1,000,000,000 representing roughly 20 per cent of Canada's gross national product.

St. Laurent Says:

Money Pinch To Get Worse

TORONTO (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent predicted Monday night that shortages of money and materials will get worse this year, but the pressure will slacken in six months to a year.

He estimated the amount of money intended for plants, shops, offices, houses and schools and their equipment will rise about 12.5 per cent, roughly $1,000,000,000 higher than last year.

"Such an increase of about seven per cent in real terms would greatly intensify the present shortages and something will have to yield—either in the competition for funds to finance projects or in the competition for labor and materials to carry them out," he told the Canadian Construction Association.

Boosting of the insured mortgage rate ceiling to six per cent from 5½ — announced by Works Minister Winters earlier in the Commons — will help attract more funds to the housing industry. (See Page 20).

But "the fundamental fact is the over-all shortage of savings to meet the total requirements for construction and other capital expenditure."

Footman-Valet Tries B.C.

Palaces Boring

VANCOUVER (CP)—A man who wouldn't work for the Queen of England because he thought the job might be boring has arrived in Vancouver looking for work.

Twenty-seven-year-old John L. Lewis—No, he's no relation of the bushy-browed American union leader—is asking board and room plus $125 a month. He's a footman-valet which, he says, means he polishes silver, sets tables, polishes shoes and does other household chores.

He would also be "gentleman's gentleman" to the man of the house, tidying up the man's room and shaving him with a straight razor.

LIFE SUITS HIM

I've been a domestic almost all my life," Lewis said. "I don't want to change now."

Before he came to Canada last May, Lewis said, he had chances to work for both the Queen and the Queen Mother. He turned both offers down.

"As a footman in Buckingham Palace, you would stand all day opening one door. It's too boring. I like private homes where you get a variety of things."

He sought work in Toronto an arrival in this country, but had to settle for running an elevator. Then he headed west.

"I was told there are many retired—but wealthy—British people here," he explained in an interview. "I know they'll want a gentleman servant and I'm hoping to land a good position."

Race Vote

Canada Stays Neutral

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Canada abstained Monday as the United Nations special committee voted 55 to 5 to call on South Africa to revise its racial policies.

Canadian delegate R. A. D. Ford said his delegation was of the opinion that continued intervention by the UN into matters of domestic concern such as this has "little practical value."

Saanich Eyes Shopping Centre Plan

Saanich may pave the way soon for the possible establishment of the largest and "most ideally located" suburban shopping centre in the Greater Victoria area.

Council's industrial development committee chairman, Coun. J. Ronald Grant, pointed to a 15-acre triangular property on the east side of Douglas between Seymour and Saanich Road as the most logical site in the municipality for a large-scale shopping centre development.

As the first step in drawing the eyes of commercial interests to the site, the committee last night voted to recommend to council that the entire 15 acres be rezoned for commercial development.

The committee also will recommend that council instruct the works committee, or set up a special committee, to determine a new site for the municipal yard, currently located on the property.

Overtures have already been made to council about possible sale of the yard property, Coun. Grant said.

"It's almost a certainty if we recommend rezoning we will substantially improve the value of the yard," he said.

Much of the other land within the "triangle" is owned by a Vancouver businessman, W. C. Mearns.

Coun. Grant's conception of a shopping centre for the area is along the scale of developments in West Vancouver and Burnaby, with a large suburban store joined to a number of small establishments using a common off-street parking area.

"It is time we consider possuch choice suburban property for commercial use on a large scale," the councillor said.

"This property is the geographic centre of urbanized Greater Victoria and is located at the junction of the two principal arterial routes —the Island Highway and the Pat Bay Highway."

Truckers Hold Out

Some 24 truckers employed by Stewart and Hudson Ltd. on projects in various Vancouver Island centres have rejected a company offer of a 15-cent-an-hour increase over a two-year contract.

Meeting in Nanaimo yesterday they voted to hold out for a 15-cent boost this year to $1.65 an hour. The truckers, members of General Teamsters' Union, Local 885, are scheduled to continue bargaining with the company with the help of conciliation officer W. T. McLaughlin.

Car May Pay Bank

Leonard Wilson of Duncan, confessed bank robber, is still trying to raise funds to repay the full amount he stole in a robbery Jan. 7 at the Royal Bank of Canada, Douglas and Cormorant.

Appearing in city police court yesterday, Wilson was represented by counsel James Proudfoot who requested a further remand.

Wilson, he said, was trying to raise funds from friends. Failing that, counsel was authorized to sell Wilson's car to obtain the necessary money.

Saying he was in favor of restitution being made, prosecutor Alan Bigelow agreed to a remand to Jan. 28.

Wilson netted $1,340 in the holdup, of which about $850 was recovered when he was arrested in Seattle.

* * *

In Esquimalt police court yesterday Albert C. Bystedt, no fixed address, was accused of passing a worthless cheque for $45.45 at the Tudor House on Jan. 10.

Bystedt, who is under remand from city police court on two similar charges, pleaded guilty. He was remanded to Jan. 28.

* * *

Melvin F. Newton, 695 Baxter, pleaded not guilty to a charge of theft to a value of more than $50. He elected trial by magistrate and was remanded to Jan. 28.

* * *

Also remanded to Jan. 28 after a plea of not guilty, was Donald T. Quaite, 491 Constance.

Quaite, who also elected trial by a magistrate, was accused of "unlawfully and wilfully causing a fire resulting in damage to a building, to wit a dwelling house at 491 Constance."

This charge is distinct from that of arson.

* * *

One driver was convicted, and four pleaded guilty in city police court to charges of careless driving.

Found guilty was John MacGregor, a visitor from Saskatchewan, staying at 737 Courtney.

MacGregor, involved in an accident Dec. 24, was fined $35 but, as he is a visitor, driver's licence was not suspended.

* * *

Robert G. Arms, HMCS Naden, pleaded guilty to careless driving resulting in an accident Jan. 6 at Bay and Belmont, when his car collided with the rear of another car under tow. Damage totalled $750. Arms was fined $35 and his licence suspended.

Same punishment was meted out to Douglas Knadle, HMCS Cayuga, who pleaded guilty to the same charge. He was in an accident Dec. 26 when his car went out of control on Fairfield Road. Damage amounted to about $600.

* * *

William A. Steadman, 953 Caledonia, was also fined $35 and had his licence suspended. Police said that on Jan. 4 Steadman was driving east of Johnson when, west of the bridge, his car swung to the wrong side of the road and collided with another.

Fourth to plead guilty to careless driving was Hans Joachim Hartung, 28 Menzies, who collided with the fence around Macdonald Park while turning from Dock onto Niagara. He was fined $35.

Norman William Scott, 533 Harbinger, admitted driving without a driver's licence. He was fined $25.

Garden Notes

Lilac Time For Pruners

BY M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

I doubt if any of our spring-flowering shrubs give as much pleasure to their owners as the old-fashioned, sweet-scented lilac. Only too often, though, the old family lilac bush is permitted to go untended for year after year, and gradually the trusses of bloom become fewer and smaller.

The most common cause of non-flowering or poor blooms on lilacs is the presence of suckers. These sucker-shoots spring from the roots on which the finer named varieties of lilac are grafted, and as these "wild" suckers are much more vigorous in growth, they sap the bush of its vitality.

CUT DEEP

Lilac suckers grow up through the soil, usually quite close to the main stem, and they originate from the lateral roots. It is no use at all to cut them off at soil level, as this will only cause them to branch out and grow with renewed vigor. It is necessary to scrape away the soil until you can see the spot where the sucker emerges from the lilac root and cut it off at that point, making a clean cut flush with the root.

Pruning is very important with the lilac family, especially if you want quality instead of quantity in the flowers. In all cases, the old flowers should be removed as soon as they begin to fade and before they can set seed, for making seed is a very exhausing process for any plant.

LATE WINTER

The pruning proper is best done in the late winter, because the flowering branches are so easy to identify then by the clusters of large, fat buds at the tips.

The first job in pruning is to take out any branches which cross or which are growing toward the centre of the bush, and any old wood which is preventing air and sunlight from reaching the centre portion.

With this done, identify those branches which have fat, vigorous buds at their tips, and retain these, cutting out everything else. This is rather drastic, but if it is done every third year, a regular sequence of bloom will result.

BIG TRUSSES

The first year after such pruning, you won't have many flowers but the trusses of bloom will be enormous, and the flowers will be particularly well-formed.

The second season, the trusses will still be of prize-winning size, and there will be a lot more of them. This should be the peak year of flowering performance for your bush.

The third year will bring an even greater number of flower trusses, but there will be a noticeable falling off in the size and quality of the blooms. This completes the cycle, and the bush is pruned again the following winter.

VITAL TIME

As with all flowering shrubs, the most important period in the life cycle of your lilac is from the time the flowers fade in the spring until late fall—a period in which most gardeners neglect their trees, losing interest after the flowers are finished. Regular feeding and watering through the summer—particularly in August—will pay handsome dividends the following spring.

The lilac doesn't care much for chemical fertilizers—they tend to stimulate woody growth at the expense of the flowers. Well-rotted cow manure is the stuff for these shrubs, spread four inches deep over the whole rooting area, which is a diameter roughly equal to the height of the bush.

Bashes Communism

Eisenhower Sworn In

WASHINGTON (CP) — Dwight D. Eisenhower was sworn in publicly for his second and final four-year term as president of the United States Monday and dedicated himself to work for peace in a divided world.

Eisenhower and Vice-President Richard M. Nixon took the oath on the steps of the U.S. Capitol before cheering thousands gathered on the lawns for the great inauguration pageant, the climax to the constitutional process by which Americans select a new president every four years.

Chief Justice Earl Warren administered the oath to Eisenhower in a brief ceremony in mild but cloudy weather. Then, in a 1,600-word inaugural address, Eisenhower lashed out against "international communism" and called upon "America the bountiful" to share her destiny with all men.

The president and Mrs. Eisenhower lunched with congressional leaders before riding back to the White House to the ringing acclaim of an estimated 750,000 persons.

On a huge stand erected before the executive mansion, Eisenhower and his official family reviewed a monster 2½-hour parade.

Four big inaugural balls climaxed the day's festivities. The president and Mrs. Eisenhower planned to spend 15 or 20 minutes at each.

Eisenhower, by a constitutional amendment adopted in 1949, is prevented from seeking a third term.

The president called "international communism and the power that it controls" the great "divisive force" loose in a world which he said rarely has "known such peril as today." Yet toward the people of Russia, he thrust a hand of friendship.

The cost of a just enduring peace will be high in toil, help and sacrifice, the president warned. But he voiced conviction that "we can help heal this divided world."

Stallions . . . . . Must Go

Mares Will Lose Wild Boyfriends

Domestic mares in the Peace River district are about to lose some of their wilder boy friends.

Provincial cabinet yesterday ordered an open season on wild stallions in the Upper Cache Creek area because they are causing "an uncontrolled increase in the numbers of horses to the detriment of forage and interfering with the care and management of valuable domestic mares."

In other words, the offspring of the stallions are getting out of hand.

The cabinet approved a request from the Upper Cache Creek Cattlemen's Association that members be allowed to shoot the stallions on sight.

Every stallion, branded or unbranded, over one year old in the district is now deemed to be a public nuisance and may be shot.

With Department

Lampson Auditorium Will Be Discussed

Construction of an auditorium for the proposed Lampson Street High School will be discussed with the department of Education, Greater Victoria school board decided last night.

Lampson Street Elementary School PTA asked the board to consider the need for an auditorium with proper stage and sound effects to serve the Esquimalt area.

Request was referred to the buildings and grounds committee. Current plans were for a combination gymnasium-auditorium.

SERVE 4,000

Richard Reeve, chairman of the buildings and grounds committee, said such an auditorium could serve some 4,000 students in View Royal, Victoria West and Esquimalt.

The board said the construction of the auditorium could not be included in the referendum which will be voted on during the week of March 4 to 9, but could be added as a final item on the planning list for the area.

Members of the board will meet with Saanich council to discuss the $5,600,000 school building referendum at the board offices Jan. 30 at 8 p.m.

TOUR PLANNED

A representative group of high school principals, male counsellors and board officers will tour the Canadian Services College at Royal Roads March 8.

The trip is being made to get first-hand information of the courses and education available to boys at the tri-services college.

Greater Victoria residents will have a chance to see and get information on the type of schools the board will build with the $5,600,000 in the referendum at an open house at the new Colquitz Junior High School on Feb. 20.

While Search On

'Doctor Hid Drugs'

EASTBOURNE, England (Reuters) — Dr. John Bodkin Adams tried to hide drugs under the very eyes of detectives searching his home, a Scotland Yard officer testified Monday.

The plump little medical man, said by Crown counsel to have murdered three rich patients out of greed for money, celebrated his 58th birthday in court listening to dramatic evidence from Detective-Superintendent Herbert Hannam.

It marked the start of the second week of hearings to determine whether Adams should stand trial for the alleged slaying in 1950 of Mrs. Edith Morrell, 81, a wealthy widow, with an overdose of drugs. He gained a limousine and a chest of valuable silver cutlery from her death.

Detective Hannam, known to the underworld as "the gentleman sleuth" because of his manner and dress, led the investigations into local gossip and rumor arising from the number of times Adams figured in the wills of his dead patients.

DOCTOR'S HOME SEARCHED

The search of the doctor's home took place towards the end of last year, with the curtains drawn to keep out prying eyes. Adams "flopped in a chair" with head in hands, apparently crying, Hannam said.

Adams had pointed out one cupboard to the detectives who, Hannam said, found it a "very untidy" mixture of bottles, pieces of chocolate and butter.

As he searched, Hannam, out of the corner of his eye, saw Adams walk slowly across the room to another cupboard, open it, and slip two objects into his coat pocket.

Following a Hannam prod, Adams then took from his pocket a small bottle containing morphine and a carton containing another similar bottle saying "I did not want you to find it there."

Motorists Taxed Enough Already

SEVERAL of the recommendations of the Gordon Commission have produced some unfavorable reactions, but probably none more than the suggestion that municipalities should improve their revenue position by taxing motorists. At present in British Columbia and almost everywhere else motorists are not a source of civic revenue except through parking meters and driving misdemeanors. Since they are the people for whom streets are built and maintained at much expense, it might appear reasonable in theory that they should be taxed accordingly. In practice, however, local taxes on owners of vehicles would be an unduly severe burden.

The trouble is that the owner of a car or truck is a too-easy mark for the senior governments. In the purchase of the vehicle, by the time the federal government has finished with him several hundred dollars have been added to the price in excise and sales taxes. Then along comes the provincial government with its sales tax, a charge for registration and recurring fees for vehicle and driver's licences. But that is only the beginning. Every time he fills his tank he has to fork out more money to the Province in gasoline tax that costs on average about half a cent for every mile driven, and adds up over the year to a very heavy tax indeed.

The principle of the gasoline tax is that through it the owner of a vehicle pays for the construction and upkeep of the roads. Under the system followed in British Columbia, however, whereby every penny of the gasoline tax is retained by the provincial government, the municipalities are left out in the cold. Motorists have to pay tax to the government for the use of roads built without financial assistance by the municipalities out of property taxes, which means that the motorist is taxed twice.

While no accurate estimate is possible, it might not be an exaggeration to say that 75 per cent of the gasoline tax revenue is derived by the Province from the use of municipal streets towards which the Province contributes nothing. Any suggestion that the vehicle owner should be directly taxed by the municipality on top of all this would be bound to be resisted, and for excellent cause.

Apart from that aspect, administration could be exceedingly difficult. In a composite area like Greater Victoria, for example, where municipal boundaries are being crossed all the time, would a motorist have to pay taxes in all of them? If not, how could the revenue be apportioned among them?

The Difficult Job Lies Ahead

ISRAEL has been given five days by the UN General Assembly to withdraw all its troops from the Gaza strip and the Aqaba region. Half-a-dozen nations, including Great Britain and Canada, warned against precipitate action that would leave a vacuum but nevertheless voted for the resolution. Interestingly too Britain and France, partners of the Suez intervention episode, took opposite sides on the resolution, with the latter voting against it. These apparent confusions emphasize the complexity of the Middle East problems.

Having already withdrawn from most of the Egyptian territory east of the canal Israel will probably bow to the UN edict, though under protest. The Jewish state is uneasy over a situation which involves a return to the status quo, and not without warrant. Israel, lacking a guarantee of UN protection, fears a resumption of Egyptian border aggression. She has the memory also that for some years now Egypt has barred Israeli ships or supplies from the Suez Canal, a violation of international usage that the UN still accepts with amazing complacency.

Once the last Israeli soldier has pulled out of Egyptian territory — although it should be noted that the Gaza strip is not properly Egyptian territory—the UN's real work will begin, assuming it is aware of its responsibilities. Mr. Lester Pearson for one seemed none too sure of this when he pointed out there would be no excuse if the UN force did not police the border areas to ensure the security of both Israel and Egypt. The job to be done now is to secure a permanent settlement of the Arab-Israeli dispute and a restoration of the canal as a free waterway. That is a more difficult proposition than was the ending of the Suez intervention.

The UN has coddled Colonel Nasser and retrieved Egypt from its military defeat in Sinai; it has left him stronger in prestige and still in control of the canal. It is up to the UN to see that the situation does not end there. Only continued supervision will prevent fresh outbreaks of border incidents—and that by a more effective UN force than exists at present —and only positive UN action will ensure a peaceful settlement in the Middle East.

Housing Interest Raised

BOOSTING the permissible interest rates on guaranteed loans under the National Housing Act by half of one per cent, effective immediately, as announced by the government in the House of Commons yesterday may achieve some relaxation of the curb which "tight money" had induced in the scheme, but it is not an ideal solution by any means. If housing loans under NHA authority are forced up to 6 per cent per annum, it will be the dwellers and not the builder who will have to pay it. The sum of $4 per month extra on a $10,000 housing loan contract may not seem much in itself, but it is $48 a year on top of loan, taxes, upkeep and all of the commitments of a home owner.

Through its own monetary policy—a thin borderline skating between inflation and credit control by semi-direct means —the government has been partly responsible for the present situation. It squeezed the chartered banks towards higher fluid reserves; paid more for its own borrowings, which sets the base for all other forms of credit, and lectured the country on the undoubted evils of inflation. The result has accrued slowly, but perhaps inevitably. As money rates tightened there has been a growing restriction of credit. The same number of borrowers competed in a notably restricted market, and non-essential loans dried up. The builders have been the first to protest, especially in the case of group housing undertakings.

In an economy such as Canada's nothing stands alone. If credit shortens and cash is hard to get this condition affects everyone in the end. It may be that the government's action to spur renewal of housing construction by this means will have some effect. Certainly guaranteed loans at 6 per cent will be more attractive to the lenders than unsecured covenants. At the same time, the cost of stimulating housing by this formula will not be borne by the chartered banks, the housing authority or the builders. It will fall on the prospective home owner, who in the light of all the circumstances has a good deal to carry.

Nationalization of Banks

By SYDNEY CAMPBELL
Reuters Financial Editor

LONDON (Reuters) — "Egyptianization" of banks and insurance companies makes no immediate difference to any country's business in or with Egypt, but it throws important light on Egypt's economic plight and may have a minor bearing on the question of compensation.

In announcing the new legislation, Finance Minister Kaissuny asserted that after the Suez Canal nationalization the British and French banks had refrained from financing the cotton crop or industrial and commercial interprises and had thus created a slump in cotton prices and thereby injured Egypt's economy.

He alleged that after the freezing of Egypt's currency reserves they had granted credits on such a scale as to exhaust the country's entire free currency reserves, causing a fall in the Egyptian pound abroad; and had undermined Egypt's economic situation.

London and Paris head offices of banks in Egypt deny these allegations. They say that up to the sequestration in early November their Egyptian offices operated normally, and that since the sequestration they have had no contact either way.

Sequestration is the term used for an Egyptian government order issued Nov. 1 that all French and British property, including oil installations, be registered with the finance ministry for seizure.

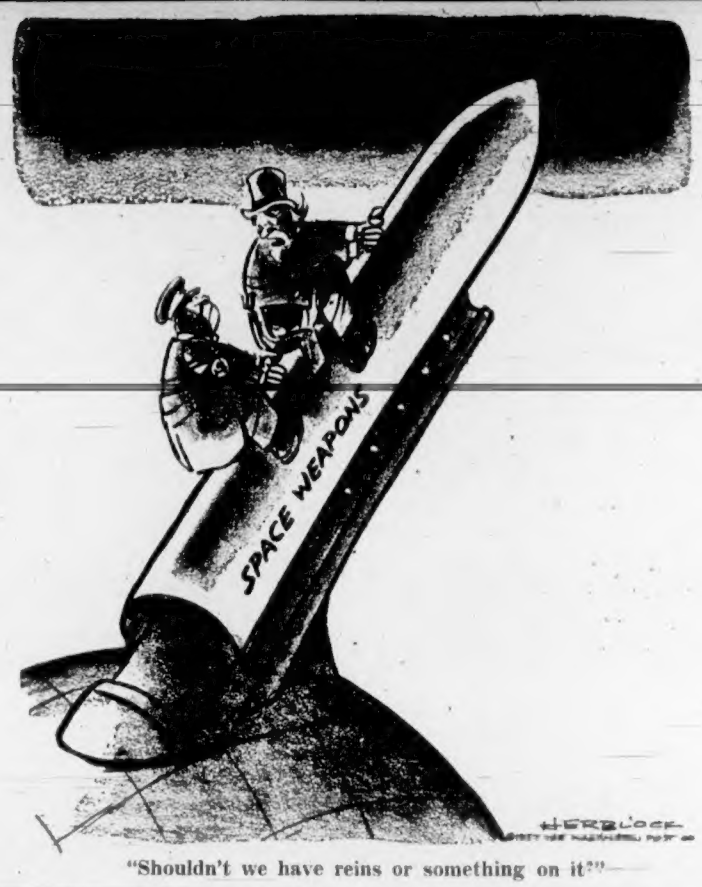
Regardless of the allegations and the denials, the significant thing is that Kaissuny gives so serious an account of Egypt's economic situation and currency reserves—far the most serious that has yet come from Egypt.

Compensation will be paid to the Egyptian sequestration administration, not by it. A judicial body will be formed to assess fair compensation to be paid by the government to the administration.

As this stands, it will be merely a bookkeeping transaction between two Egyptian official bodies. Nevertheless, it might be the correct technical procedure for ultimately bringing this matter into a settlement of Egypt's claims and counter-claims with Britain and France.

Pending any such settlement, the Egyptian situation is of course a loss to the London and Paris head offices, particularly Barclays Dominion, Colonial and Overseas Bank which has more than 40 branches and agencies in Egypt, Comptoir National and Credit Lyonnais.

They—as well as other banks—have important assets in Egypt on which they are receiving no return. But immediately they are no worse off than under the sequestration.



"Shouldn't we have reins or something on it?"

Thinking Aloud

". . . of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

I suppose it depends on how one prefers to have politics served up—with the reasoning of grown men or the quarreling of children.

The Ottawa Journal, for instance, is all for spice—maybe even spite. It cites a British MP who took his young son to hear the Suez debate at Westminster and deplores the fact that after the "jeering and cat-calling" the lad said it was a good thing the debate wasn't televised.

The MP wasn't up in his parliamentary history, remarks the Journal, and goes on to recall with gusto the good old days when Joe Chamberlain got into a fist fight, when an Ulsterman threw a book at Churchill, and two other members grappled bodily on the Commons floor.

And then, coming home to Parliament Hill at Ottawa, the paper summons up the past glories of Cartwright throwing javelins (verbal, I hope), of words that burnt the pages of Hansard, of a member buttoning his coat and challenging another to meet him in the corridor.

* * *

Alas, bemoans the Journal, those days are past. Now the Canadian parliament is dull and devoid of passion.

If the idea is to fill the galleries then, of course, parliamentarians should stage a circus; if the idea is to legislate well, then perhaps there's room for some dullness.

Even parliamentarians are human, naturally, and temper can get the better of everyone. Some saints were known to get into tantrums. But often enough the behavior of legislators denies their years.

Our own James Bay assembly comes into the picture, too. There was a letter in the paper the other day from an MLA who was irked with the suggestion that proceedings were unedifying for the ears of schoolboy pages.

* * *

The MLA says that people who mistake parliamentary humor or anger for indecorous behavior just don't understand the parliamentary process.

Perhaps they understand it only too well. For often there's much more anger than humor. Much, much more.

In fact in no other type of gathering of men charged with serious matters does sneer and jibe and plain bad manners have such wide play. No other kind of human grouping would permit it, as a matter of fact.

Of course parliamentarians sit as ins and outs, which is where the trouble lies. They are opponents and well-established custom prescribes that they should insult one another to the limit.

* * *

This, presumably, is supposed to enhance the conduct of public business.

Ah well, men will be boys, even if some boys turn away from them in distaste. It is at least amusing to recollect that some of the antics of parliamentarians would be frowned upon in their own homes if imitated by their offspring.

The parental finger would wag then with a vengeance. Perhaps it will take television to act as a parliamentary parent.

Reports from Ottawa

PARADOXICALLY, when the Senate's land-use committee gets rolling its main concern will be land misuse.

In this context one thinks immediately of marginal farms, of stony hillsides which should be growing trees instead of poor crops, of very sandy land which equally should never have been plowed. But the question of land use, or misuse, is one which affects practically the whole farming community.

For example, in New Brunswick the counties of Victoria and Carleton are famous for their great farms. They vie with Prince Edward Island in national and international tuber markets. Yet growers there consistently get 25 to 50 cents a bag less than the Island farmers get for their potatoes. The reason is that the New Brunswick fields are so stony that mechanical picking injures the tubers, and that these interior farms are susceptible to the spread of potato virus diseases by aphids.

By contrast, farmers along New Brunswick's upper Fundy coast would be hard put to find a stone in an acre. Their fields are swept by ocean breezes which keep aphids away from their crops. Yet they grow very few potatoes.

* * *

This example of how more intelligent land use could make prosperous farmers more prosperous is likely to be put before the committee by Sen. A. C. Taylor of New Brunswick. Many other examples are certain to come to light from the experience of the 20 to 25 senators who will sit on the committee, and from the hundreds of witnesses they are likely to hear.

The size of the committee indicates the importance attached to this land use study. The Senate is being combed for members with agricultural backgrounds. Consideration is being given to having the committee sit through parliamentary recesses until its job is finished.

Recess sittings are most unusual. Parliamentary committees "die" with the end of a parliamentary session, and special provision would have to be made to continue the land use committee past prorogation or dissolution. There is some precedent for this, but not in more than 20 years.

However, the Senate has an interest in this inquiry which goes considerably beyond the committee's terms of reference. It is that the probe presents an opportunity for the Senate to confound those critics who contend that the Upper House is a useless anachronism which should be abolished. This is why the Senate is ticketing a third of its effective strength for the inquiry, and why the senators are considering devoting their full time to it without additional remuneration. They want to prove that the Senate has been maligned; that it can handle a big responsibility quickly and well.

* * *

The inquiry is also an implied government promise of "something for the farmer" in the way of government help to acquire better land, or improve present farms, or make it easier for farmers to get working capital.

The Canadian Federation of Agriculture is disappointed that obviously no government legislation on matters assigned to the Senate committee will be forthcoming this session. But politically speaking it is unrealistic to expect action now. The fact of the inquiry, without concrete government promises, leaves the farm voters free to anticipate any benefits they wish as a result of voting Liberal.

Horrors of Creative Art

By GREGORY CLARK

HAVE you been in the china departments of the big stores lately, or in any of the smaller shops where they sell china, ornaments, objects of art? Have you been recently trying to buy a nice simple bowl or vase, or modest attractive dish of some sort? How about a lamp? A pleasant, unobtrusive table lamp or bridge lamp?

We appear to be reaping the consequences of all this art teaching, art study, that has been introduced into our public and high schools, technical and other institutions of learning in the past 20 years.

We obviously have raised up a generation that is incapable of leaving things alone. They must, they must exercise the artistic talents that have been roused in them. With the result that it is next to impossible to purchase anything that has not been the subject of somebody's creative instinct.

And a more astonishing mixum gatherum of mis-shapen, squiggly, squashed, lopsided grotesques than you will find in the average china shop you will not find except perhaps at the annual exhibition, up a side street, of some of these artsy-craftsy groups of distraught ladies and pallid young men who never shovelled snow in their lives.

When I complained to the manager of the lamp department of one of the big stores that every lamp he had on display looked as if it had been designed by somebody trying to express something rather than make a lamp, he admitted that the big manufacturers, even, were managed and staffed by people whose creative impulses had been roused, either in public or high school, or in art school.

"It is hard, I suppose," he said, "to get an employee nowadays who will just sit at a bench and do what he or she is told. They all want to get into the act. Everybody has got ideas, and no doubt they keep pressing them on their bosses. With the results you see here."

"What I want," I persisted, "is a nice, plain lamp that will go and sit quietly in the corner of my room without trying to put on an act that will steal the show."

"Well, I haven't got any like that," confessed the manager. "What you see here is what the public wants. For you forget, my friend, that it isn't only the makers of things whose creative instincts have been roused by their exposure to art in popular education. It is the buyers, the consumers as well. They feel a thing isn't good design unless it looks like nothing else in the world."

Our present era will doubtless be as comic to our grandchildren as the mid-Victorian era is to us.

On the Record

Significance of Arabian Oil

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

THE known oil reserves in the Persian Gulf area amount to 75 per cent of the free world's supply. Just as important is the rate at which the reserves are being drawn upon in this area, in comparison with the North American re-

Persian Gulf producers (whether American, British, or mixed companies) are, when normally operating as during the first 10 months of 1956, using up less than 1 per cent of reserves. In contrast, and despite the fact that much new oil has recently been discovered in the United States, North American reserves are being drawn on at the rate of 8 per cent per year. This does not mean that North American oil will be exhausted in 12 years. Not all the sources of supply have been fully tapped. But it does mean that a continued diminution of production in the Middle East could cause a serious overdrawal on North American reserves.

* * *

Regarding production, and considering the normal rate, the Saudi Arabia area produces approximately one-quarter of the free world's whole supply. Even with limited stoppage it is down 10 per cent today. It also produces it more cheaply, and for a variety of reasons. In the Persian Gulf area oil sells f.o.b. at slightly under $2 per barrel. North American oil sells around $2.75.

This is not due to a lower cost of production, figured according to labor costs. In Saudi Arabia, labor costs include factors that do not operate in the United States. The oil business cannot use untrained men. Although the Saudi learns rapidly, and is not inferior in native intelligence to anyone, even primary schools have been non-existent except in the relatively few towns scattered over a country as large as Texas and California combined, almost all of it desert and inhabited by Bedouin, who move their flocks with the seasons.

Until recently secondary education was even rarer, and still today there is not one institution of higher learning in the country, if the new military college in Riyadh is excepted. And there the faculty must provide liberal arts courses that in the West are studied in high schools and junior colleges. Nowhere in this country can one study engineering. For that one must go to Egypt, Syria, Lebanon, or other Arab states, or to Europe.

Today not only menial but a considerable percentage of highly technical operations and administrative functions are performed by Saudis who have either been educated by Aramco there or sent abroad at the expense of the oil company.

* * *

But oil flows at a rate unparalleled in North America except in a very few fields—mostly in east Texas. The average production of United States wells is 13.2 barrels per day. The average production of an Arabian well is over 6,000 barrels per day, and over 5,000 for the whole Persian Gulf area. In Saudi Arabia, two wells alone in the fabulous area of Abqaiq and Ghawar produce nearly 7 per cent of the total free world's supply!

Add to this the fact that transportation to Western Europe, whose wheels normally turn on Persian Gulf oil, is radically cheaper than from any other area when all the pipelines to the Mediterranean are functioning and the Suez Canal is open. Since the crisis transport by tankers (these being inadequate) has shot up in price, a drain on every government budget, private enterprise, and trade balance in the free world, with a delayed but certain kickback in the United States. The United States government has set up an international commission to ration and distribute oil by countries, with prudent co-operation.

And even this limited reduction of production and transportation also has serious repercussions on the oil producing states and their workers, including technicians and administrative personnel. There have been outbreaks of labor trouble in numerous areas where British companies operate, and there was one in Saudi Arabia, but not in connection with the Suez Canal crisis. It occurred last summer but was promptly suppressed by the Saudi government.

How much of this is communist-inspired is impossible to state with any degree of exactitude. Too many factors are operating to encourage any simple answer. Those who are guarding such a huge proportion of the free world's oil supply cannot afford prejudices. They study the situation with the highest degree of exactitude of which they are capable. And for the most part, being scientifically trained, they are conditioned to searching for exactitude.

Short Memory

I am sure that I am only one of a large number of old soldiers of the First World War who take a jaundiced view of the zeal with which, after 1914 and 1939, we are again taking German militarists to our bosom.

The four smiling airmen whose photograph appeared recently in your paper, and who are to occupy high positions in the German air command after their American tour, bring to mind the bright young Prussian officers who were given the freedom of military establishments all over this continent in the early 1900s.

And now the post of commander-in-chief of allied land forces in Central Europe is to be offered to Lt.-Gen. Hans Speidel, one of the "best brains" of the German high command, 1939-1945. It is stated that General Speidel has been cleared of any Nazi leanings. He is perhaps one of those who lamented that, but for Hitler, Germany would have won the Second World War? Stern stuff of the good, old-fashioned Prussian militarism?

Of course this is all in a good cause, to protect us against Russian Communism. In the 1930s Western powers, both openly and overtly, boosted Hitler's stock to the same end, and look at what they got for their pains!

The writer has no race prejudice against the Germans. That people has given the world some of its greatest scientists, artists, philosophers, humanitarians; but surely the German record for the first half of the 20th century provides ample proof that the German race can breed some of the worst monsters of all history. Buchenwald is a monument to that brutal fact! The German nation is not yet to be trusted with military might.

How short can our memories get?

SPCA Pound Policy

Having been approached some months ago by the reeve of Esquimalt, the Victoria branch, SPCA, has entered into an agreement to conduct the Esquimalt pound operation. This is in line with the policy whereby a great number of municipal pounds are now operated by SPCA branches.

Until it is ascertained how much extra work there will be in this pound operation, the committee decided to start off by using the present facilities at 111 Wilson Street. This plan is a natural development as the SPCA being located on the edge of the municipality has already been doing much of actual pound work. In the event that the present kennels prove inadequate, plans and estimates have been made to increase kennel accommodation.

It was the unanimous decision of the committee to enter into this pound agreement and we are satisfied that this is one of the most constructive steps by this branch.

W. LEACH,
President, B.C. SPCA, Victoria Branch.

How to Get University

We suggest that the present government of B.C. transpose itself (minus the Island members) to some point on the mainland acceptable to all concerned; that new legislative buildings be erected at that location.

Further, that the citizens of Vancouver Island proclaim the establishment of a separate province (the 11th) similar to Prince Edward Island off the Atlantic coast.

Then use the present legislative buildings as a new university and the residence of the lieutenant-governor as legislative assembly for Island members, building a smaller house for a new lieutenant-governor, so that the incumbent need not be a citizen of affluent means.

A request to the federal government for funds to remodel and equip the buildings as a university should gain approval in view of funds already allocated for grants to such institutions.

'Political Footballs' Tired of the Role

Canadian ex-prisoners of war captured at Hong Kong during the Second World War are tired of being used as a "political football," a Victoria ex-PoW said yesterday.

Lionel Speller, Vancouver Island representative of the Hong Kong Veterans' Association, said the men were granted internment money by the government two months before the last federal election in 1953.

"Everytime there's an election in sight, we are used as a political football," he said.

Mr. Speller said the Canadian government still owes the PoWs money for the time served in Japanese war prisoner camps.

He denied a claim by an Ottawa official who said the men had been paid three times the amount owed to them from a fund administered by the Red Cross.

Fire Razes Small Home

Clinton Wilson, 20, plans to take his 18-year-old wife and five-month-old baby to a new, but unfurnished home at Grand Forks, B.C., today.

Their two-room home in Colwood, which they had planned to leave this week for the interior, was demolished by fire Sunday night. The fast-spreading flames also destroyed all [illegible] including a living room suite, television set and deep freeze, which they had planned to take with them.

They had no insurance on the house or contents.

The small house, valued at about $2,000, was owned by Mrs. J. Wishart, grandmother of Mrs. Clinton, and was situated on a large farm property on Wishart Road, close to the junction of Sooke and Metchosin Roads.

Mrs. Clinton had been visiting her grandmother, and was just going home when she [illegible] may have started from a wood and coal heater. Colwood volunteer fire department reached the house in good time, but, said Chief Dick Emery, the building was "completely enveloped in flames" by then.

Mrs. Wishart said yesterday that Mr. Wilson was working in Grand Forks as a sheet metal worker but returned home after he was telephoned by his young wife of three years. They had planned to move to the interior town in a week, taking their furniture with them, but this event "speeded things up for them," Mrs. Wishart said.

Lawton Spurns County

NOTTINGHAM, England (CP) — Tommy Lawton, fiery player-manager of non-league Kettering, has turned down an offer to take over the vacant managerial post with Notts County of the English Soccer League's second division.

Lawton, who lifted Notts County into the second division while player-manager with the club from 1948 to 1952, said he refused the offer because club officials and players were split over the question of his appointment.

Last week the players told club officials they wanted 41-year-old Frank Broome, trainer of County's second-string team, to be given a chance at the top post.

Mondays Not Blue for Cats; Canucks Again Victims, 5-2

Monday night in Victoria is something Vancouver Canucks should avoid. Four times they've returned across the straits empty-handed after starting a hockey week against the Cougars here.

They left last night on the short end of a 5-2 score as the Cougars fashioned a victory in the last three minutes of the game for the second time in a row on Victoria ice.

On Jan. 7, Canucks were leading by 2-1 until 17:14 of the third period. Between then and 19:41, George Ranieri beat goalie Ray Mikulan twice and Doug Macauley sandwiched in a goal between Ranieri's scoring efforts.

Last night's scores: Vancouver 2 at VICTORIA 5; Calgary 2 at Winnipeg 4.

Next game: Tonight, Brandon at Edmonton

The script was almost exactly the same last night. Canucks again took a 2-1 lead into the third period but this time the Cougars had it tied on a goal by Wayne Brown at 4:23.

QUICK BURST

Overtime seemed certain when the Cougars struck for three goals between 17.42 and 19.51. Once Ranieri started the flurry and Macauley provided the second goal. The last one this time went to Gordie Haworth.

As in the previous Monday game against Canucks, the contest got better as it progressed. First-period action was dull and ragged with the Cougars unable to do much against the close marking of the Canucks, as usual playing a spoiling game and waiting for the breaks.

Cougars opened up in promising fashion at the start of the second period, took the lead on Doug Anderson's 18th goal at 13 seconds and just missed twice in the next two minutes as shots by Bill Davidson and Ranieri hit the piping with goalie Ray Mikulan beaten.

Canucks continued their waiting game and it paid off when the Cougars took only two men out on a three-man attack. Both Ralph Keller and Gordie Pennell got passes away just before they were hit. Pennell's pass went to the unchecked Motto McLean, who moved in on the right side to get a good low shot past Marcel Pelletier.

CANUCKS AHEAD

McLean put Canucks ahead four minutes later while on the ice as a penalty-killer. Cougars, as they often do, had trouble getting their attack started and their penchant for passing the puck behind their own goal cost them dearly.

Colin Kilburn's attempted pass hit the side of the net and the harrying McLean pounced on the loose puck and backhanded through Pelletier's legs.

Fast, and effective physiotherapy, Ranieri's fine batting form and Kilburn's dogged play combined to win it for the Cougars.

Dressing-room administrations put Wayne Brown back on the ice after he had to leave in the second period suffering from a charlie-horse incurred when he upended Wiggie Wylie. The little left-winger clicked on his first turn, his high blazer hitting Mikulan high on the chest and escaping over his shoulder.

Ranieri broke the tie when he swung his stick at Haworth's waist-high shot from the right side and turned it past Mikulan.

Canucks put on six attackers for a face-off in the Victoria zone and Anderson cleared the puck into Vancouver territory. Apparently beaten to the loose puck by McLean, Kilburn managed to keep the Vancouver winger from clearing and Macauley whipped in, calmly stick-handled to the edge of the crease, and then pushed the puck into the empty net.

That one was Macauley's 100th WHL goal.

Haworth got his 11th a minute later, breaking from his own end and sliding the puck under Mikulan.

Winnipeg's tail-end Warriors continued their improved showing in the Western Hockey League's prairie division Monday night by turning in a sound defensive display to stop the Calgary Stampeders, 4-2, before 2,943 Winnipeg fans.

Victory snapped Calgary's winning streak at five games. Although still nine points behind the third-place Stampeders, the Warriors have been rough to handle in recent games and boast three victories in their last four starts.

Terry Blames Nerves For Decision to Quit

By DAVE DILES

DETROIT (AP) — Fidgety Terry Sawchuk told the hockey world Monday he's through—at least for a month.

Blaming nervousness for his decision to quit Boston Bruins after six-and-a-half brilliant seasons of goaltending, the brush-cut goalie said he would confer with the club in a month to reconsider.

Announcing to a crowded press conference what he called "the toughest decision of my life," the 27-year-old Sawchuk said he could no longer take the goalkeeping grind.

Although in apparent good spirits, Sawchuk was obviously tense as he read a two-page statement which said in part:

"Since my illness in December, when I spent 12 days in Carney Hospital in Boston for infectious mononucleosis, I certainly have not felt in the right frame of mind, though I have tried to adjust myself to continue playing for the Bruins.

"I haven't been getting the proper sleep . . . I've lost my appetite . . . my nerves are shot . . . and I'm edgy and nervous all the time.

Although Sawchuk's retirement last Tuesday came as a surprise, he insisted "it was not an overnight thought."

Sawchuk said he had consulted a specialist who advised him to take "at least a month's rest." In Boston, club officials stuck to the position that Sawchuk is not ill. A club spokesman said Dr. C. E. Long of Detroit had informed the club that the blood infection Sawchuk suffered last month had nothing to do with last week's incident.

"The Detroit doctor reported him as 'tired, nervous and jittery,'" said the spokesman.

Coach Milt Schmidt suspended Sawchuk when he failed to show up for practice last week. Asked whether Schmidt would apologize to Sawchuk, as he had said he would if the goalie were ill, the club spokesman said: "He is not sick."

Sawchuk said in his statement:

"I'm still under contract to the Boston hockey club, who have always treated me very well," he said. "But my health, for my family's sake is certainly more important than any monetary consideration."

Wings Move Close to Lead; Bruins Lose, Drop Well Back

Once again, it seems, it will be between Detroit Red Wings and Montreal Canadiens for the National Hockey League championship. Boston Bruins, who made it a three-way fight up until a week ago, have dropped out of the battle, for the time being at least.

Bruins were edged out, 3-2, by the Toronto Maple Leafs Sunday night at Boston. It was the fifth game in a row without a win for the Boston team, which has won one, tied two and lost five of its last eight games and is now eight points out of the lead.

But for Chicago Black Hawks, the Bruins would be 10 points out. The Hawks, who appear to be getting tougher to beat all the time, ended Montreal Canadiens' win streak at seven games Sunday night with a 4-2 triumph at Chicago. Detroit Red Wings took full advantage of the upset to pull within two points of Canadiens by whipping New York Rangers, 5-2, at Detroit.

Rangers are now five points behind the fourth-place Leafs, who have taken on winning ways ever since Ted Kennedy came out of retirement.

Detroit's one-two punch of Gordie Howe and Ted Lindsay helped knock off the Rangers. Howe picked up his 27th goal with Lindsay helping and then set up Lindsay for his 22nd goal. Tied for second place in the individual scoring race with 34 points, Howe and Landsay are only four points behind Jean Beliveau, blanked in the two weekend games.

Victory, however, was costly for the Red Wings, who lost the services of Al Arbour, their starry young defenceman, for an indefinite period. Arbour suffered a kidney injury and doctors refused to speculate as to when he would be able to play again.

Wings immediately called up Gordie Strate, 21-year-old defenceman from Edmonton Flyers of the Western Hockey League.

The leaders:

James Norris Memorial Trophy, best all-round defenceman, Doug Harvey, Montreal.

Calder Memorial Trophy, most proficient rookie, Ed Chadwick, Toronto.

Harvey, Beliveau and Reibel all won last season.

Harvey made it a runaway for the Norris award but the vote for the other three awards was comparatively close.

Beliveau, Montreal centre, had 51 points as top candidate for the Hart Trophy. Rightwinger Gordie Howe of Detroit had 43 and goalie Terry Sawchuk of Boston 35.

Reibel topped voting for the Byng award with 24 points, only four ahead of Floyd Curry of Montreal. Tied for third were Red Kelly of Detroit and Andy Hebenton of New York Rangers with 15 each.

Angry Officials Plan Action In Protest of Grid Decision

The Ontario Rugby Football Union, disappointed over the Canadian Football Council recommendation against an Eastern Grey Cup playoff with the ORFU, has called a special meeting for Saturday to discuss the future of the league.

Angered officials of three teams in the league—Toronto Beaches, Sarnia and Kitchener-Waterloo—said Sunday night the Canadian Football Council has no right to deny the privilege of challenging for the Grey Cup.

Jack Rayner, president of the Beaches, said "I don't think their decision is much good for Canadian football. The ORFU has always been a good producer of players for the Big Four and Western Conference. They should be helping us out."

President Ralph Duffus of the London Lords, newest entry in the league, said "our league is getting stronger and we would like a little more recognition." Commenting on the council's decision, Duffus said: "I don't think we will let it stop there."

As far as fans are concerned, about the only thing new in professional football in Canada this year will be players. There were no major developments arising from the CFC's annual meeting although three minor changes were approved and three more were sent to the Canadian Rugby Union for consideration.

There will be no change in the Grey Cup classic. It will remain a single game with the seats again selling at a top of $10. The CRU is expected to go along with the council's recommendation that the Grey Cup be held in Toronto in 1957 and in Vancouver in 1958—B.C.'s centennial year.

The CFC chairman, Ralph Cooper of Hamilton, and registrar G. Sydney Halter of Winnipeg, were empowered to approach commissioner Bert Bell and owners of the National Football League clubs with a view to improving relations between the two organizations.

The council also agreed that the East-West Shrine game be played after the Grey Cup; league awards be left until after the Shrine game; separate waiver rules continue in each league; number of imports signed by a club remain at 12, and each roster at 50.

Harness Racing Success

Parsons' Theory Paying Off

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Alex Parsons, hotelman and owner of a fine stable of standardbreds, believes that in business you get what you pay for. He puts it a little differently: "If you breed mice with mice you never get rats."

One of London's shrewdest businessmen, he has carried the theory into all his operations. He has paid top prices for U.S. racing and breeding stock and bred his own at Pine Ridge Farm a couple of miles east of the city limits.

"Duffy" Parsons, originally a cattle buyer, then a thoroughbred man, eventually put a lot of his extra time into the trotting and pacing game and this, like his hotels, has paid off.

Harness racing has become a big business in Canada and Parsons is one of the breeders who helped to bring this about.

Western Ontario was the home of the Grattan strain, a famous breed of horses bred by members of the Grattan family. They contributed a great deal in increasing interest in trotting and pacing. And others, following in their footsteps, started their own Canadian breeds.

The Parsons string, which campaigns under the colors of the Pine Ridge Stable, had a number of successes last season on U.S. tracks and Parsons hopes to do better this year.

Canny about his earnings, Duffy won't admit how much his bank balance benefited from the 1956 racing program, but he made more than $50,000 from the combined winnings of three of his horses.

Much of the credit for the success of is horses, Parsons says, belongs to his present trainer and driver Del MacTavish, a Lachute, Que., farmer.

Hoover Retains Crown But Not Before Battle

Gene Hoover of Vancouver, heavily-favored to retain his "A" division singles title in the Pacific Coast squash championships, won as expected in Sunday's final at the Victoria Squash Club but not before getting a tremendous battle from Walt Pettit of San Francisco.

The top-seeded Hoover staged a great rally to capture his second straight coast crown in a brilliantly-played match, 15-6, 11-15, 5-15, 17-1, and 16-13. Pettit dropped the first set but ran through the second and third sets with comparative ease and held an 11-4 edge in the fourth set.

But the battling Hoover came back to win the extra point set and recovered from a 12-9 deficit in the final set to squeeze out the victory. The match was stopped three times in the final set when Pettit suffered cramps in his hands.

VISITORS SCORE

Mrs. Greenwood beat Mrs. M. Stephenson of Victoria, 3-1, in the women's class. Earlier in the day, Dr. Kemble Greenwood of Victoria had lost to Pettit in the "A" class semi-finals.

Alberni Stretches Puck Lead As Combines Upset Courtenay

NANAIMO (Special)—Courtenay Glaciers lost ground in their bid to overhaul front-running Port Alberni Flyers in the Suburban Hockey League here Sunday by dropping a 4-3 decision to the last-place Nanaimo-Ladysmith Combines at the Civic Arena.

Combines, scoring their fifth victory of the season, were led by the Mel Gourdeau-Stu Johnson—Arnie Johnson line, which accounted for all four goals and six of the seven assists. Gourdeau picked up two goals and two assists, Arnie Johnson scored twice and assisted once, and Stu Johnson picked up three assists.

In the other game, Bert Yesowick and Ken Walz each scored twice and assisted once to lead Flyers to their easy victory.

First innings total—MCC 293, Natal 163.

Mt. Brenton Produces Fine Skiing

While most Island residents hoped fervently that the snow and coolish weather would soon disappear, the weekend was a fine one for skiers.

With conditions for skiing perfect, the largest crowd in years had fun on Mount Brenton slopes. The Victoria Sno-Birds Ski Club cabin was packed with a record total of '43 skiers, from Duncan, Alberni, Qualicum and Nanaimo as well as Victoria.

In addition, there was an equal number of skiers on hand for Sunday skiing, none of them minding the 90-minute hike from the logging road.

Snow conditions were perfect, with four inches of powder snow on top of four feet of well-packed base. Bright sunshine added the final touch and the 750-foot tow rope was in great demand.

Winning Contract

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♠	Pass	2♣	Pass
2 N.T.	Pass	6 N.T.	All Pass

West didn't like the opponents' bidding and you can't blame him much, for it placed him in the position of having to make a choice among unpleasant leads without very much information to go on. You're welcome to keep company with his misery—and, honestly, the problem is such that no one can sharply criticize any choice you make.

When the problem was handed to us we decided, and with no great assurance, that we'd lead the ace of diamonds. The reason for this choice is the possibility that, on such stab-in-the-dark bidding, the opponents might lack the king as well as the ace of diamonds, whereas with any other lead they might be able to run 12 tricks.

It happens that the ace of diamonds lead would have been successful, though not as much so as a low spade into the teeth of South's bid. But when the hand was actually played, the bedeviled player in the West seat decided on orthodoxy. His lead of the fourth-best heart was the only way declarer could surely make his contract.

South allowed the lead to run to his hand and the nine won the trick. By finessing against West's queen on the next heart lead, declarer was able to bring home four heart tricks. He also had time to establish one diamond trick. These five, with six good clubs and the ace of spades, were enough to fulfil his contract.

With any other lead, however, West will defeat the contract if he is careful to hang onto four hearts while declarer runs the clubs. For whatever comfort it may furnish Maurice Diamond, the unfortunate gentlemen who had to make the actual opening lead, we've tested this hand with half a dozen good players—first directing the opening lead of the ace of diamonds. In every case but one the slam was made anyway because West elected to discard two hearts while declarer was cashing his first three club tricks.

WINNING POINTS

In leading against a suit slam, you must make an aggressive lead because time is on the side of the opponents; against no-trump, however, a safe lead is usually best—if you can find one.

B.C. Rejects Float Plan

The B.C. government has declined a Chamber of Commerce suggestion that it build a new float for seaplanes and other watercraft in front of the legislative buildings.

Capt. Ron Newell, chamber director and harbormaster, said that failing a new float, the harbor development group would press for the restoration of an old float in front of the buildings.

'Friendly Persuasion'

Here's a Film Without Flaw

By BRUCE LOWTHER

Probably the best motion picture about a family since "Best Years Of Our Lives" had 'em standing in in line in 1947 is "Friendly Persuasion," now at the Royal Theatre.

There just isn't a flaw in it—the acting is excellent, the plot and writing are good, the music is well integrated, and above all, the photography is as good as any Japanese art film.

Gary Cooper and Dorothy McGuire are the heads of a Quaker family in Indiana in 1862—peaceful people suddenly confronted with a war in their backyard.

How they and their children, wonderfully played by Anthony Perkins, Phyllis Love and young Richard Eyer, react to this threat to their existence makes for terrific entertainment.

There's a bit of everything, humor in the temptation to the Quakers at a county fair, a nicely-done love affair and a short but stirring battle. Marjorie Main appears briefly as a harridan overshadowed by three Dogpatch daughters.

But the real star is Elsworth Fredericks, a little-known photographer, who makes the Indiana countryside come alive. It's hard to believe that any land could be so beautiful.

No Licences Issued

Pinball Ban Possible

Pinball machines will soon be completely banned in Victoria if city council approves a recommendation passed yesterday by finance committee.

No licences have been issued this year for the pinball machines in operation in the city, and none will be if council amends the vending-machine by-law as recommended.

City Solicitor T. P. O'Grady suggested the amendment. He said that a pinball-machine operator had recently been convicted on a gaming charge, and that although not all pinball machine operators would meet the description of the ones involved, all were suspect.

OPERATORS' CASE

Before final action is taken on the recommendation, finance committee will hear representations from the law firm of Harrison and Anderson on behalf of certain amusement operators.

The committee also recommended elimination of two other parts of the vending-machine by-law; the prohibition of children under 16 buying cigarets from vending-machines, already covered by the Criminal Code, and the requirement that vending-machine operators must buy goods for the machines from Victoria merchants, which Mayor Percy Scurrah called "absurd."

$11,099,000 Job Given

Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi announced yesterday that Dominion Bridge Company of Vancouver has been awarded an $11,099,000 contract for steel and construction of the main span of the Second Narrows Bridge in Vancouver.

Overall cost of the bridge will be in the neighborhood of $16,000,000.

The minister said the award of the contract still must go before the Toll Bridges and Highways authority for signing.

'Baby Doll' Banned To Local Catholics

Roman Catholics in this area should not see the controversial Movie "Baby Doll," church officials said yesterday.

A spokesman said the church would follow the lead of the Legion of Decency in the United States, a church organization which has banned the Tennessee Williams' story of "poor whites."

"Baby Doll" will open at the Odeon Theatre Feb. 7 and will be shown under an "adults only" label.

Adjudicators New

Three of the five adjudicators at the Greater Victoria music festival in May will be newcomers to this area.

They are pianist Hugh McLean, a Canadian who is a teacher and concert artist in England and will judge piano classes here; Wayne Hertz, choral and vocal judge, dean of the music school at Central College of Education, Ellensburg, Wash., and William D. Cole, bands and instruments, instrumental music director of Stadium High School, Tacoma.

Other adjudicators will be Mrs. Joy Coghill Thorne, speech arts, and Mrs. Peggy MacFarlane, folk dancing, both of whom have judged many festival classes before. The festival will be held May 8 to 10 and 13 to 15, and entries close March 23.

Gosley Welcomes Theatrical Agency

One of Victoria's leading entertainers and theatrical agents voiced support yesterday for National Agencies, formed last week by C. J. R. Watling to find jobs for local amateur and professional talent.

Comedian Jerry Gosley, whose Smile Show has found work for local artists in many parts of Vancouver Island over the past few years, said there has "long been a need for recognition of Victoria's varied talent."

Mr. Gosley said he had found that many Victoria organizations "prefer to arrange their own programs," but added a "sincere hope" that this agency will be successful in its promotions.

Victorian's Work Played

A concerto for small jazz group and orchestra, written by Toronto musician Norm Symonds, a native of Victoria, was performed by Mr. Symonds' group and the CBC symphony orchestra in a broadcast on the CBC national radio network last night.

Hanna Spirited Aboard in Secrecy

Family Away

Night Blaze Wrecks Home

SHAWNIGAN LAKE—Prompt action by Leading Seaman W. Osland and his wife early Sunday morning saved the home of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Fortin, Old Victoria Road, from being completely gutted by fire.

However, there was considerable damage in all three rooms of the house and lounge furniture was a total loss. The Fortins carried fire insurance.

LS and Mrs. Osland were returning to Victoria at about 1 a.m. Sunday, but found the snow too deep to drive through and turned back to Shawnigan Lake.

SPOTTED GLOW

It was fortunate they did. As they passed the Fortin house, which was in total darkness, Mrs. Osland noticed a fire-like glow and they investigated.

There was no one home, but through the window they saw the chesterfield a mass of smouldering fire.

LS Osland summoned the Shawnigan Lake Volunteer Fire Department.

Mr. and Mrs. Fortin and their infant daughter were visiting Saturday night and they also got bogged down by snow and were unable to return home until Sunday afternoon.

IMMIGRATION MINISTER PICKERSGILL
. . . final judge

MPs, Public Protest Expulsion Move

PORT ALBERNI — Immigration officials last night sneaked stateless Christian George Hanna back on board the Norwegian freighter Gudveig here.

Frustrated television and news cameramen, who had waited since early morning for pictures of Hanna being returned to the ship, could only get distant pictures.

Hanna was whisked to the far side of the ship in a tug and climbed a rope ladder to get on board at 6.15 p.m.

Signs reading "No News Reporters Allowed" were posted on the ship.

The Gudveig is scheduled to leave Port Alberni at 8 p.m. today, but the sailing may be delayed until Immigration Minister Pickersgill decides whether or not Hanna should be allowed to stay in Canada.

Counsel for Hanna, who now faces deportation, last night prepared to return to the courts in a final attempt to spare him from further exile on the high seas.

Lawyers John Taylor and Donald White, angered by an immigration board's refusal to grant an adjournment in Hanna's appeal, said they would apply to British Columbia Supreme Court to have it reversed.

The immigration department announced in Ottawa that Hanna's appeal was rejected by the three-man board, but that Hanna had appealed direct to Immigration Minister Pickersgill and that his application was en route to the capital by air mail. Mr. Pickersgill has power to grant the young stowaway refuge.

At least six countries have refused landing permission to Hanna, who has no passport or citizenship papers.

His lawyers yesterday appealed for public support of the effort they are making to obtain a home for him in Canada.

RUSH TO HELP

They asked all "interested citizens" to join in sending a telegram to Mr. Pickersgill asking that Hanna be given permission to remain in Canada "pending deliberations of the United Nations, or until his case can be further investigated."

Last night in Vancouver the CPR telegraph had to put on extra staff to cope with the hundreds of citizens wishing to put their names on the telegram. More than 1,000 names were expected by midnight.

Hanna may even have a Canadian wife for the asking.

Two Vancouver girls appeared at the immigration building in Vancouver yesterday and offered to marry Hanna, 23, if marriage would permit him to remain in Canada.

The girls are dancer Mia Pavanne, 23, and Rosalie Clarke, 18-year-old nurses' aide.

Counsel for Hanna said at least three other girls had offered to marry him. None of the five have seen him except in newspaper pictures.

Davie Fulton, Conservative MP for Kamloops, said in the Commons last night the hearing of Hanna's appeal against an immigration department deportation order was "the worst travesty of justice one could imagine.

"It is absolutely incomprehensible that the immigration department should persist in its so-called procedures for hearing appeals when the highest Canadian courts already have severely censured them for it," Mr. Fulton said.

Hanna's counsel, Mr. Taylor, contended it was unjust to refer an appeal from a decision of an immigration department inquiry officer to three officers in the same branch.

Hanna's application for domicile was rejected last Friday by Frank Wragg, special inquiry officer appointed by District Superintendent of Immigration P. W. Bird.

Monday's appeal was heard by Mr. Bird, D. R. Henderson, supervisor of the placement section at Vancouver, and H. T. Peters, assistant district superintendent.

John Diefenbaker, Progressive Conservative opposition leader, siderations should have priority said yesterday Hanna's case was one in which humanitarian conover "stubborn adherence to the law."

The case is to be studied by the United Nations human rights commission, and Mr. Diefenbaker said Canada should not force Hanna to go wandering about the world until the UN has made a decision.

Robbery Suspect Released on Bail

NANAIMO—A scar-faced Vancouver man, William Cadgar, was committed for trial at the Spring Assizes here on a charge of armed robbery. Preliminary hearing was held yesterday.

Don Cunliffe, Nanaimo lawyer, appeared for the crown and Norman D. Mullins, Vancouver, represented the accused.

Cadgar was ordered released on $5,000 bail.

The charge against the 24-year-old man relates to the hold-up on Oct. 4 of middle-aged Mrs. Elizabeth Pattison, owner of Pat's Food Shop, Victoria Road, when an armed bandit stole $123.

Mrs. Pattison picked Cadgar out from a lineup in Nanaimo Police station on Jan. 8. He was arrested Dec. 18 although a warrant had beeen out for him since October.

Esquimalt Ceremony

District Arms Unveiling Set

ALLAN BEDDOE

Heraldry in Canada has been "misused greatly," according to Allan Beddoe of Ottawa, the man who designed Esquimalt's colorful coat-of-arms, to be unveiled tomorrow at 7.40 p.m. by Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross at a public ceremony in Esquimalt High School.

One Canadian town, he said, used the royal crown as the principal device in its coat-of-arms.

"The crown is the principal device of the sovereign's badges and may be used only when permission has been given," he said. "That is why each RCAF badge, which has the royal crown, has to be submitted to Her Majesty for approval."

Another Canadian town used what it thought was the crest of the man after whom the town was named, he said.

However, research in England showed that the crest belonged to a different man of the same name.

Esquimalt, though, he said, could be sure of the authenticity of its new coat-of-arms, since it had been registered at the College of Heralds, London, and found to be unique.

River Diversions Won't Harm Fish

CAMPBELL RIVER — Diversion of the Salmon, Heber and Quinsam Rivers will not affect the fish in those streams, according to Ed Quirk, generation planning engineer for the B.C. Power Commission.

Mr. Quirk told the Campbell River District Chamber of Commerce that water licences issued for the diversions require the commission to pass sufficient water at all times through the diversions to support fish population downstream from the projects.

Since there are natural falls or blockades on all three rivers, which prevent migratory fish from going upstream as far as the diversionary works there are no problems connected with passing migratory fish around storage dams, he said.

Diversion of the three rivers into the Campbell River watershed will add 25,000 horsepower to the system utilizing existing power plants.

Will Wait to Be Fired

Jamieson Won't Resign House Job

By PETER BRUTON

Former sergeant-at-arms of the legislature Edgar A. Jamieson has spurned a suggestion that he resign his post rather than wait for the legislature to fire him, it was learned yesterday.

Mr. Jamieson was suspended last session after testifying he had been told to "break" former lands and forest minister Robert Sommers. Although his appointment was rescinded by cabinet last December only the legislature itself can ratify this action.

Mr. Jamieson, who lives on Sooke Road, hung up on reporters as soon as they identified themselves yesterday. However, he was quoted as saying: "They've caused quite enough unpleasantness already so I don't see how that resigning would help unless they expect a row in the House."

Cadboro Bay's Move 'Integration Trigger'

Union of Cadboro Bay and Oak Bay, [illegible] advantages for both areas, might also trigger a much needed integration of all the Greater Victoria municipalities, a town-planning consultant said yesterday.

Some form of integration of local governments and services "must take place," said Roderick Clack, member of a prominent firm of architects and town planning consultants, and a resident of Ten Mile Point.

He charged that Oak Bay's [illegible] party had [illegible] pered amalgamation over the years and said it therefore seems probable that the metropolitan area will have at least two local governing bodies for some time.

Cadboro Bay and Oak Bay [illegible] municipalities with advantages [illegible] Bay [illegible] area for expansion, Mr. Clack said.

But there wouldn't be sufficient reason for the change unless the remaining urban part of Saanich was to become "part of a joint City-Saanich administrative area."

"Cadboro Bay could do an exceptional service to the entire community."

Russian Dressing Flavors Any Salad

Over Boxing Day last weekend which is always the best and one little to dance I was reading some letters [illegible] of [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] have to be answered personally but others are of general interest and there [illegible] be good [illegible] today. [illegible] Mrs. W. B. asks [illegible] Russian Salad Dressing [illegible] I don't quite recall what [illegible] Here is my suggestion [illegible]

RUSSIAN SALAD DRESSING

Mix [illegible] cup [illegible] [illegible] cup condensed milk 1 egg [illegible] [illegible] and beat [illegible] smooth and thickened. Add [illegible] and fold in mixture [illegible] with [illegible] beating [illegible] kind of [illegible]

[illegible] Have you ever counted the number of people who automatically salt all the food on their plates even before they taste it? In preparing most foods a little salt is added in cooking and this small amount should be just enough to bring out all the good flavor of the food itself, but it should not mask and cover the real food flavor. Most people use more salt than they require—and they do this not only once, but day after day. The body has the extra task of getting rid of this surplus. Everyone will be interested to know that doctors have found salt has a definite effect on blood pressure. In certain types of heart and kidney conditions high blood pressure can be reduced by eliminating salt from the diet.

[illegible] Well, in a case like this the simplest thing for me to do is to quote from the Canadian Department of Agriculture in [illegible] Roasting is a moist method of cooking that [illegible] the cuts of meat such as round and flank steak, short ribs and oxtails in liquid in a covered pan. To braise short ribs of beef first cut the meat into [illegible] inch servings and brown these on all sides in a little hot fat. Season with salt and pepper. Then sprinkle with flour, 1 tablespoon for each pound of meat, and brown again slightly. Add tomato juice (about 1 cup for each pound of meat) and a little chopped onion. Stir well and turn meat. Cover and cook slowly over low heat on top of stove until very tender—this might take about 1½ hours. Yes if you are using the oven for some other reason these short ribs can be cooked in it at 175 degrees.

TV TALK

By Bruce Lowther

Victorians who fared to find out Saturday night how the power boost for channel 12 affects channels 11 and 13 will have to wait until late this week.

Bad weather has delayed installation of the new antenna on Orcas Island and Channel 12's picture will remain poor for a few days. As reported Sunday, [illegible] there was little effect on either of the adjacent channels.

Legislature Chief

Sergeant-at-Arms Tired of Retirement

British Columbia's new sergeant-at-arms is well qualified to act as a sort of police chief for the provincial legislature.

for the coming session, which opens Feb. 7, 54-year-old Danzil Ashby of Sidney can look back on close to 30 years of active police work, the majority of which was with the RCMP.

He retired as staff sergeant at the Victoria RCMP detachment in October, 1955, and began his eagerly-looked forward to retirement by moving from the city to puttering around five acres of land in Sidney.

"Retirement is a funny thing," Mr. Ashby explained. "It's something you have worked for all your life, you get it, and then you don't want it."

That's the reason why he is now sergeant-at-arms.

Mr. Ashby is replacing Lt.-Cmdr. E. A. Jamieson who was suspended last session after testifying before a legislative committee that he had been out "to get" former lands and forests minister R. E. Sommers.

The legislature has yet to approve the firing of Lt.-Cmdr Jamieson.

Mr. Ashby will have a number of men under his control—messengers and attendants who are needed every session to see that things go smoothly.

He was in the RCMP, spending most of his service in Alberta, for 27 years and also served two years with the new-defunct Alberta Provincial Police.

He started his sergeant-at-arms duties this week.

Panel discussion on the question "Are There Frills in Education?" will be staged by Oak Bay Junior High School PTA in the school auditorium Monday at 8 p.m.

Members of the panel will be John R. Meredith, supervisor of school curriculum for the department of education; W. H. Golby, chairman of the Greater Victoria school board; David Stoddard, Oak Bay optometrist, and Robert Masmillan, a former Victoria alderman.

Moderator will be Mrs. Lillian Evans, immediate past national president of the National Home and School and Parent-Teacher Federations.

Three Letters

Farouk Follows Mid-East Events

ROME (Reuters)—A man with a deep interest in the Middle East—ex-king Farouk of Egypt—has been following closely developments in the Suez Canal dispute from his apartment in Rome and hotels in various parts of Italy and France.

Only once so far in the Middle East crisis has he intervened. That was in September, after President Nasser nationalized the Suez Canal, when he wrote to President Eisenhower, President Rene Coty of France and Sir Anthony Eden of Britain urging them to try to "resolve peacefully the problem dividing your countries and the Egyptian people."

"The Egyptian people," the letter said, "cannot be held responsible for the acts of its government and cannot pay with its blood for the mistakes which have been made."

BRIEF TRIP

Because of his promise not to engage in politics while in asylum in Italy, Farouk went to Paris for a few hours to write the letters to the three statesmen.

In the four years of his exile, the portly, pleasure - loving king has radically changed his way of life. He lived the first two years in luxury. Now, his existence is comparatively frugal.

When he landed on Capri in August, 1952, after his dethronement, he had a large entourage. He requisitioned most of one of Capri's luxury hotels for himself, his family and his suite. Later he rented a 42-room villa in the Alban hills, just south of Rome. This cost him 15,000,000 lire ($24,000) a year.

But two years ago, he moved to a five-room, 10th-floor apartment in Rome's best residential quarter where his rent of about 100,000 lire ($160) a month is below average.

Police Killer Won't Recover From Insanity

CALGARY (CP) — One of Calgary's biggest manhunts, sparked by the slaying in 1933 of city police inspector Joe Carruthers, has been closed.

Police said the killer of the Inspector now is a patient in a mental hospital in western Canada. They did not identify the man or the hospital.—

Insp. Carruthers was killed June 13, 1933, when he and other officers answered a call concerning a house prowler. Police said he was not armed when shot through the heart by a gunman.

Attempts to track down the killer, backed by a $1,000 reward by the Alberta government and $500 by the city of Calgary, were unsuccessful. It is believed he fled to the United States after stealing a car in Calgary.

They said no murder charge has been laid since doctors said he would never recover.

KIDNEY ACIDS Rob your Rest..

Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They turn and toss—blame it on 'nerves'—when it may be their kidneys. Healthy kidneys filter poisons and excess acids from the blood. If they fail and impurities stay in the system—disturbed rest often follows. If you don't rest well get and use Dodd's Kidney Pills. Dodd's help the kidneys so that you can rest better—and feel better. 134

French paratroopers search Arab resident of Algiers at the city limits in the new stepped-up drive against terrorists inaugurated by Brig. General Massu. After recently taking over as commander of the paratroopers the general immediately set up new and rigid anti-terrorist methods, first confined to the notorious Casbah section, but now general throughout Algiers.—(CPC)

CAMPBELL RIVER — A coroners' jury returned a verdict of accidental death Saturday in ruling on the case of Charles F. McRae, 28-year-old power-shovel operator killed Thursday in an accident at the Battle Lake road project.

Grade foreman Ernest McKenzie testified that McRae was trapped in the cab of his shovel by a huge rock which fell on it during a small rock slide. Welding torches were used to remove him from the cab.

Eight Races

Frostbite Sailors Favored by Winds

Frostbite sailors of Royal Victoria Yacht Club found a good wind for most of the day and completed eight races in Cadboro Bay Sunday.

Roy and Ruth Murdock emerged as the top figures of the day, Mrs. Murdock winning both ladies' races and Mr. Murdock winning two out of three in the men's races. All were sailed in Davidsons.

Both races for boys, in sabots, were won by Chris Scott, followed in the first race by Pat Sullivan and in the second by Bob Smith.

Kay Robinson won the single race, also in sabots, for girls, followed by Kay Rudd.

Harry Gladwell won the first men's race, followed by Ned Ashe. In the second and third races, it was Mr. Murdock, followed by Harry Barnes in the second and Ned Ashe in the third. Coming in second to Mrs. Murdock were Shirley Dowell in the first race and Leslie McNeill in the second.

Sawmill Sued For Breach Of Contract

Mr. Justice Wilson in Supreme Court here has reserved judgment in a suit by Mahinder Singh against Acme Sawmills Ltd. for breach of contract.

It was stated that Mahinder Singh had contracted with the company to take mill-ends, for sale as stove wood in Victoria, from the company for two years. He said that last August, before the termination date of the contract, the company refused to sell him any more wood.

Defence of the company was that the contract had been terminated by mutual agreement, but Mr. Justice Wilson held there was no such mutual consent.

Sarnara Singh and Magur Singh are defendants, represented by W. B. Monteith. George Gregory acted for the plaintiff.

Auditory Hallucination

Dieppe Raid's Deathly Din Heard Nine Years Later

LONDON (Reuters) — Two English women vacationing at a French coastal hotel were awakened [illegible] by the rattle of gunfire.

They jumped out of bed and ran to the window. Outside they saw the sleepy resort town of Puys, near Dieppe, quietly going about its early morning business.

Other people in the hotel heard nothing.

It was a case for the British Society for Psychical Research, a group which specializes in running down ghosts.

The society researchers found: 1. The hotel that Mrs. D, aged 32, and Mrs. A, 33, were staying in had been occupied by German troops during the war.

2. The date on which they heard the sounds was Aug. 4, 1951. On Aug. 19, 1942, fighting swept the area in the Canadian raid on Dieppe. Times and details of what they heard checked exactly with what actually happened nine years earlier.

A PHENOMENON

The investigators, G. W. Lambert and Kethleen Day, concluded after careful research that D. and A. had experienced a genuine phenomenon, an auditory hallucination, for which no logical reason could be found.

The case is typical of scores now being studied by the society, which has sent out circulars all over the country inviting the public to report personal encounters with the unusual.

The society was founded 75 years ago by a Dublin physicist, Prof. William Barrett. It attracted the attention of eminent men and women in science, philosophy, literature and politics.

All of them, however, agreed to tackle psychical research "without prejudice, or prepossession of any kind, and in the same spirit of exact and unimpassioned inquiry which has enabled science to solve so many problems once not less obscure nor less hotly debated."

Recruits Arrive Saturday

A second platoon of nearly 30 Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry recruits will arrive at Camp Gordon Head Saturday for completion of the first phase of training in the comparatively mild Victoria climate.

The first PPCLI recruit platoon to arrive here from Edmonton for recruit training, graduates about Feb. 1, and its members will be posted to regular battalions of the regiment.

A second platoon of Queen's Own Rifles from the Calgary depot is scheduled to arrive here early in February for the same training. The first QOR recruit platoon graduates with the Princess Pats' first platoon.

Recruit training is being carried out in Victoria until spring, when weather on the Prairies is suitable.

Sharp Rally Halts Slump At New York

NEW YORK (AP) — A stock ing spell showed a smart recovery trend toward the close Monday but still wound up lower on balance.

Further news of slackening orders for steel by the auto industry and of a slowdown in expansion projects by General Motors made depressing background for the market.

Pipelines Dip

TORONTO (CP)—Mining issues led the rest of the stock market to a decisive decline in moderate trading.

Trans Mountain had the severest industrial loss, losing 2¾ points. Dominion Glass, Asbestos Corp., Pembina Pipe Line, Interprovincial Pipe Line, International Pete, Imperial Oil, Great Lakes Paper, U.S. Ford and Seagram's lost between one and two points.

Senior base metal losses were generally less than a point but International Nickel dipped a point.

Triad, one of 15 western oil index stocks, lost 25 cents. National Pete added 30 cents.

Banks Lose Favor

MONTREAL (CP) — The Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges moved lower.

Aluminium and International Nickel were point losers in base metals while Algoma dropped 2 in steels. Pipe Lines weakened as Trans Mountain retreated 3¼ and Interprovincial 2½. International Petroleum and refining oils down, losing 1¼.

The recently-strong bank group eased as Royal lost 1 and Nova Scotia ¾. Papers showed Donohue off 1½ and International and Abitibi down ¾.

Fort St. John Stars

VANCOUVER—Fort St. John advanced 85 cents to a new high of $5.05, to give the oil average a boost although most other components were down.

Coppers and other base metals were lower, but Bralorne was up 5 cents at 4.05.

B.C. Telephone at $46 and Woodward Stores at 11¾ were strong industrials.

Rally Continues

LONDON (Reuters)—Despite a further drop on Wall Street, the London stock market was in good form and prices advanced on a broad front.

Gilts were in renewed demand on bank rate hopes with gains extending to ⅜.

Nuclear power shares were leaders on the upturn. Vickers was prominent following news that plans are under study for an atomic-powered oil tanker.
